FAITH FORMATION/CCD CLASSES

Next Sunday, September 18th after 8:30AM Mass, we begin a new year of religious education in our parish.

I would like to thank all those parents who already registered their children, and those who will join them soon. Please don't wait any longer. The earlier registrations help our CCD team to plan and prepare the all the classes.

We know that parents are the primary educators of their children. They are their best teachers. Children learn the most from examples being set when a family prays together, and actively participates in Mass and the Sacraments. The parents help their children to see what a difference God has made in their own life. As parents you may sometimes want to share when you have felt especially blessed by God, or maybe when you turned to Him for help during a time of trouble.

As you read through the lessons in the CCD books together with your child, think of ways that you can help your child to see what a difference this knowledge can make in his or her own life. Try to adapt the contents in the books to his or her life experiences. Help your child reflect on people and events in his or her life, and how God is an important part of those times. This will help your child to learn lessons about God's love that can last a lifetime. Please always remember that CCD classes are not meant to replace parents, but to help them fulfill their very important role.

We are in need of more CCD catechists or assistants. If you would like to help us to teach religious classes, please talk to Nadine Ramos, our Faith Formation Coordinator, to me or to deacon Tom. You may also call our parish office.

If you or someone you know would like to join the RCIA program that prepares adults for the Sacraments of Initiation, please call our parish office or contact George Ibanez.

As a Parish we are committed to provide a safe environment for all our students, and we look forward to a successful and rewarding year.

God bless you all!

Q. Is there any official Church stance regarding regular attendance of Protestant services? To provide a bit of background for this question, I am a very recent convert to the Catholic faith (I was baptized this past Easter). I was raised in a Pentecostal home, and my family all serve leadership roles of some kind in the Assemblies of God church. Since I converted, I have been attending mass and, immediately afterward, going to my parents' Pentecostal service with them. Most of my family, especially my parents, assume doctrine does not matter and instead it only matters that you have faith. I'm worried that my attendance reinforces that idea.

Should I be instead declining to attend, and explaining (graciously) my reasons for doing so?

A. There doesn't seem to be a specific official Catholic admonition for what you are asking. You sound like an informed Catholic and are strong in your faith. I agree that your continued presence at your family's church does reinforce your family members' notion that doctrine does not matter.

Perhaps you might share with them that the Mass you attend is not just another religious service and that you sincerely believe that there is nothing on the face of the earth that can compare with what happens on the altar—and that this have been happening for over 2000 years.

You know your family better than I and what would impress and not insult. But sharing the uniqueness what you have found might be what the Lord is asking of you—at a moment when they are most likely to be a little open to it.

Join our Fatima celebration night on Tuesday, September 13, 2016 here at OLCG. Mass at 7:30 PM followed by Rosary - candlelight procession around the church. There will be a blessing with the Blessed Sacrament after procession.
