Stewardship Bulletin Reflection

In today's Gospel from Mark, Jesus instructs us in the best way we can honor Him, teaching us the meaning of true worship. Jesus reveals that the way we truly worship Him is by giving Him our hearts. We also learn in this Gospel passage what our Lord does not want — the pious lip service that the scribes and Pharisees offer.

But how can we determine if we really are giving our hearts over to the Lord and not just paying Him lip service? We must examine our lives to see if they reflect a life lived out for Him. Stewardship gives us a concrete means to examine our lives in three fundamental areas — the use of our time, our talents, and our material gifts.

A stewardship way of life invites and challenges us to make specific commitments in each of these areas on a regular basis, giving us a practical means to commit to the Lord. How well we are keeping these commitments can give us a kind of measuring stick to see if we are growing closer to Him, or perhaps need to put a little more effort into a particular area of our lives.

When we all strive to give God true worship — putting Him first with all our hearts — what beauty we will find in our homes, our parish, and our world.

TREASURES FROM OUR TRADITION

When an altar is dedicated, the Rite of Dedication directs that, if possible, the relics of a martyr be mortared into the church floor under the mensa, or "altar table." Up until this revised rite, the general practice was to include small relics of saints in an altar stone, a slab of marble that was normally set in the altar itself. Today's rite states a clear preference for "martyr," and for a substantial part of the body, in accord with our tradition's desire for substantial symbols. Martyr, of course, means "witness" in Greek, and was the title given early on to the people who by their death imaged the death of Christ.

From the beginning, there has never been a shortage of such people, although it took a while for the Church to develop a process to declare someone a martyr. Saint Augustine tells how it was done in the fifth century. By then, popular opinion didn't count as much as an official tribunal set up by the bishop of the place where the martyr suffered. After the inquiry established that the person did indeed die for the faith, a metropolitan bishop had to ratify the decision before a shrine could be built or an altar set up over the martyr's tomb. For the most part, the honor paid to a martyr (called a "cult") was restricted to that diocese, although the fame of some heroes spread so much that they were celebrated elsewhere. The age of the martyrs is now, and more people died for the faith in the twentieth century than ever before, witnessing to Christ to the end. Their sacrifice remains "the seed of the Church."

Q. "My sister is a fallen-away Catholic who now attends an Episcopal church. She says that her church believes in the Real Presence of Jesus in the Eucharist, just as Catholics do. Is she right?"

A. To begin with, you should be careful using the phrase "Real Presence" when talking with nonCatholics. Many Christians accept that Jesus is "really present" in the Eucharist (or communion, as they often call it), but they mean something different than the Catholic Church's understanding of this phrase. Some Christian denominations that celebrate communion regularly- Episcopalians and Lutherans, for example-believe Jesus is "really present" along with the bread and wine. This doctrine is called consubstantiation. Catholics, on the other hand, believe that the bread and wine are literally and completely changed into the body, blood, soul, and divinity of Jesus (CCC 1374-1377). This is known as transubstantiation.

The key is not so much what any particular Christian denomination may believe about communion, but what they actually possess. Only the Catholic Church (along with the Eastern Orthodox Churches) has valid orders, i.e., priests who are validly ordained by bishops who can trace a line of succession all the way back to the original apostles. It is this power that enables the Church to follow the instruction of its founder, Jesus Christ, who desired that his sacrifice for us on earth be memorialized through the ages by virtue of the words of the priest, "This is my body ... this is my blood." It is at this precise moment during the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass (referred to as the consecration) that the bread and wine cease to be bread and wine, and truly become the body and blood of Jesus (CCC 1377).
