WEEKLY MIRACLE

This week marks the beginning of a kind of “liturgical detour.” We have been listening to Saint Mark’s Gospel during this liturgical year (Year B). Today we begin to hear a long section from John’s Gospel, starting with the miracle of the multiplication of the loaves and fishes. This miracle story is a prelude to the Lord’s statements that we will begin hearing in a few weeks, in which Jesus refers to himself as the “bread of life.” Each week we witness a miracle at Mass. We do not see a multiplication of loaves before us. What our eyes of faith allow us to see is the miracle of the transformation of common elements—bread and wine—into the Lord’s Body and Blood. Once we have received the Lord, the multiplication begins, for in the Eucharist we are strengthened to multiply our efforts to feed the poor, shelter the homeless, and bring comfort to the despairing.

Today's Gospel reading recounts Jesus' miracle of feeding the multitude. In a miracle that anticipated Jesus' miracle of feeding the multitude, as reported in today's Gospel, Elisha commanded that a small amount of bread be served to 100 men, and Jesus promised that all would indeed be fed. Elisha trusted that promise, acted upon it, and saw the promise miraculously fulfilled.

We, like most people, tend to forget the miracles our Lord can work in everyday life. If we trust in God and live as good stewards, what we accomplish is, in its own way, a miracle.

St. Paul beautifully sums up how our approach to living as Catholics and Christians should be. In today's Second Reading from his letter to the Ephesians, Paul urges us to live "with all humility and gentleness, with patience, bearing with one another through love, striving to preserve the unity of spirit through the bond of peace: one body and one Spirit." Does that describe our parish community?

This cannot happen unless we have the same kind of trust that Elisha had, and which St. Paul had, as well. Paul also says in today's Second Reading, "I urge you to live in a manner worthy of the call you have received." This is stewardship at its core. We should not give of our time, talent and treasure because we want to earn God's love. He already loves us unconditionally.

Jesus knew full well what miracle He was about to perform, but He also saw this as a chance to teach His Apostles, and also show us the way. Philip and the others had already seen Jesus perform many miracles, and there should have been no question in his mind about the divine resources Jesus had at His disposal. Yet Philip hesitated. It is human nature to be doubtful. Yet, as with Elisha, they all ate, and there was much left over. Through this miracle, Jesus is teaching us to trust Him and to do the same in our lives. And, by committing ourselves to a stewardship way of life, we can see our own gifts multiplied. And perhaps even perform our own modern-day miracles.

TREASURES FROM OUR TRADITION

Last Wednesday, the greatest pilgrimage in our tradition ended with the feast of Saint James at his shrine in Compostela, Spain. Every year, as many as a hundred thousand persons walk a portion of the medieval way of the pilgrim, earning the right to wear the scallop shell symbol of this journey of faith. In legend, this city on the northern coast of Spain is the final resting place of the apostle, and the full name of the cathedral is "Saint James of the Field of Stars." There is a tradition that Saint James the Great preached there.

In the Roman Catholic tradition, the pilgrimage, like any procession, is a symbol, life's journey distilled, a powerful sign of our journey toward a certain goal. The perils of the road, the support of companions, the contemplative slower pace of life, have the potential to transform and renew the pilgrims in ways that last a lifetime. Along the way, the distinctions between rich and poor fall away, and everyone shares humble rustic food and stops for the night in hostels or under the stars. After a long walk, the experience of entering through the great doors into the vast cathedral filled with incense, light, and song is a foretaste of heaven. The pilgrims often say that their whole lives are redirected toward that moment of entry into the heavenly Jerusalem. The most memorable feature of the cathedral is called the boto-fumeiro, an incense burner on pulleys and chains that sweeps through the cathedral in immense circles, swirling clouds of sweet-smelling incense around the vast nave.

Q. "Did Jesus really multiply the loaves and fishes? My friend's teacher said the real miracle was that the people shared their food."

A. Yes, Jesus really multiplied the loaves and fishes. The explanation of "sharing" ignores the clear, literal sense of the Gospel. It is an example of what theologians call reductionism, i.e., trying to explain a supernatural event in purely natural, worldly terms.

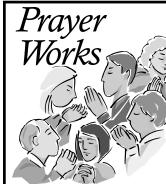

In the sixth chapter of John, the focus is entirely on Jesus' actions: it is He who shows sympathy for the people; it is He who asks the apostles about food availability; and it is He who blesses the five loaves and two fishes and orders them to be distributed among the crowd of 5,000.

Before performing the miracle, St. John tells us that Jesus "knew what he was going to do" (On 6:6; emphasis added). Notice that Jesus does not ask the crowd to share. So the question to ask those who may propose the "food sharing" argument is, "Where is the evidence for that?" The text doesn't say anything about sharing. Instead, this is an idea or theory created from something other than what the Bible actually tells us. As with all of Jesus' miracles, there is more to this one than meets the eye. In multiplying the loaves and fishes, Jesus reveals that He is the One who provides nourishment—both physically and spiritually—for His people.

The miracle of the loaves and fishes is a foreshadowing of the Eucharist. Jesus, who once miraculously fed the crowds with bread, continues to feed us today with the Bread of Life—His Body and Blood. As John tells us, "Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood has eternal life, and I will raise him on the last day" (On 6:54).

It is hard to understand why some downplay the role of Jesus in performing a miracle with the loaves and fishes. After all, if we believe in the Incarnation—God becoming man in the person of Jesus—or in the Resurrection, then why should we have a problem believing Jesus could actually multiply some loaves and fishes?
